How to read this report

Jyotish describes tendencies and timing, not certainties. The classical texts state their results bluntly; this report gives their sense, weighs each factor against the rest of the chart, and says where sources differ. The planetary positions come from one computation and are treated as correct; the reading is an interpretation and can be wrong. Nothing here is medical, financial or legal advice.

1 Chart at a glance

The shape of the chart

This is a Capricorn rising chart. The rising nakshatra is Shravana, whose lord is the Moon, and the Moon sits in the twelfth house. Saturn, the lagna lord, is also in the twelfth house, alongside Mars, which makes it the most crowded place in the chart. The seventh and tenth houses are empty, so partnership and career are read through the planets that aspect them and through their lords. Three planets sit in the dusthanas (the 6th, 8th and 12th houses, associated with effort and obstacles). In the navamsa (D9, the division traditionally linked with partnership and inner values) the Moon is strong in its own sign, while Mars and Venus are strong in moolatrikona. Jupiter is vargottama, occupying the same sign in the birth chart and in the navamsa. The dispositor chains (each planet, then its sign lord, then that lord's sign lord, and so on) run into one loop: Mars and Jupiter dispose of each other, and the chains of the Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus and Saturn all end there. Mars and Jupiter together therefore set the tone of the whole chart.

Six themes that define this chart

1. Effort kept out of sight. The Moon, Mars and Saturn share the twelfth house, and Saturn, the lagna lord, is among them. Classical texts associate this house with retreat, expenses and inner work, and they read a lagna lord here as asking for more effort before its results come. Spirituality explains the house in full.

1. A self-questioning mind. Mercury in the first house is the Atmakaraka, the planet with the highest degree in its sign, and so the one that stands for the self. It is retrograde and combust, overshadowed by the Sun, which points to an intellect that works by reflection. Mind explains Mercury.

1. Venus as the yogakaraka. Venus rules the 5th and 10th houses, which makes it the yogakaraka for Capricorn: a planet that rules both a kendra and a trikona. It is exalted in Pisces, placed in the third house with Rahu, and its moolatrikona strength in the navamsa suggests its gifts hold steady. Family covers the third house, and Career covers the 10th lord.

1. The Sun in a tested position. The Sun is in Aquarius in the second house, in an enemy's sign and debilitated in the navamsa, and it rules the eighth house. Its promises around money and savings need extra care and steady effort. Personality explains the Sun, and Finance covers the second house.

1. Jupiter as a steadying force. Jupiter is vargottama in Aries in the fourth house, and its benefic aspect falls on the Moon, Mars and Saturn in the twelfth house. It offers a benefic counterweight to that crowded house. Family covers the fourth house.

1. Relationships and career drawn from elsewhere. The seventh and tenth houses are empty. Their lords, the Moon (7th) and Venus (10th), sit in the twelfth and third houses, so relationships and career work through aspects and indirect routes rather than direct placement. Relationships and Career explain these houses.

Strengths and tensions in one view

Strengths: Venus gives the chart its yogakaraka, exalted and steady; Jupiter's vargottama position adds consistency; the Moon and Mars are well placed in the navamsa. Saturn, the lagna lord, forms Raja and Dhana combinations with Mars, which the Yogas section sets out.

Tensions: three planets sit in dusthanas and the lagna lord is in the twelfth house; the Sun is in an enemy's sign and weak in the navamsa; Mercury is combust and retrograde; Ketu aspects the lagna itself. The Moon counts as a natural malefic here because it is waning at birth, even though it is strong in its own navamsa sign. Taken together, the supporting planets are strong while the central planets carry the pressure, so steady effort and good timing are the recurring themes.

Functional roles for this Capricorn lagna

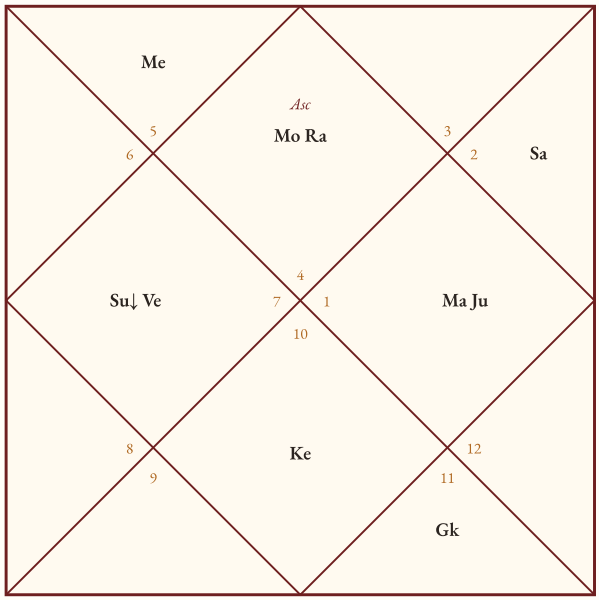

- Saturn: lagna lord and lord of the 1st and 2nd houses; neutral in the twelfth.
- Venus: yogakaraka, lord of the 5th and 10th houses; exalted.
- Mars: lord of the 4th and 11th houses; a kendra lord with a wealth-house role.
- Mercury: lord of the 6th and 9th houses; a trikona lord and a dusthana lord.
- Jupiter: lord of the 3rd and 12th houses; a dusthana lord.
- Moon: lord of the 7th house; a kendra lord.
- Sun: lord of the 8th house; a dusthana lord.

Birth-time sensitivity

The lagna sits at 22 degrees of Capricorn, so a change of sign would need the birth time to be off by about 32 minutes. The navamsa lagna sits 59% through its division and the dashamsa (D10) lagna 33% through its division. A varga lagna can shift with a few minutes' error when it sits near the edge of a division, and D10 depends closely on the birth time, so its details should be treated as provisional until the time is confirmed. The Moon moves about half a degree an hour, so its sign and nakshatra are far less time-sensitive than the lagna and the divisional charts.

Rashi chart (D1), North Indian style. The houses are fixed (the 1st is the top centre diamond, then anticlockwise); the numbers are signs (1 = Aries to 12 = Pisces). ↑ exalted, ↓ debilitated, (R) retrograde, Gk = Gulika.

2 Personality and temperament

The rising sign and the outer manner

Your rising sign is Capricorn, so the first impression is of someone steady, practical and quietly determined. The classical texts describe Capricorn rising as hard-working and persistent, someone who finishes what they start and aims high. Modern astrologers add a traditional, practical streak and a tenacity that keeps going when others stop. These are tendencies rather than a fixed fate, and the rest of the chart decides how they show up.

For this rising sign the planet most on your side is Venus. It rules your 5th house (a trikona, a house of creative intelligence and past merit) and your 10th house (a kendra, the house of work and public standing), which makes it the most helpful planet for Capricorn rising. Venus sits in Pisces, in the 3rd house, so its support works through daily life and the way you deal with people, more than through your own body.

The lagna nakshatra: Shravana

Your birth star inside the rising sign is Shravana. Its traditional meaning is learning through listening: a receptive mind, a gift for teaching and organising, and a good reputation. Trivedi describes it as amicable, persevering and receptive, and Brihat Jataka calls such people learned and graceful. The same tradition warns that a Shravana native can be easily misled by bad company or poor advice, so the star's strength depends a good deal on whom you keep close. Its ruler is the Moon, which sits in the 12th house with Mars and Saturn.

The lagna lord: Saturn in the 12th house

Saturn rules your rising sign and your 2nd house, so it is the planet that most directly carries your self. It sits in Sagittarius, in the 12th house, in a neutral sign. A lagna lord in the 12th house tends to bring its results with more effort and later in life. The classical texts link this placement with a self drawn toward spending, distance and withdrawal, and warn of heavy expense and a short temper unless benefic influences help. Rath describes the same pull as a spendthrift tendency and a quick temper. Modern readers add an interest in foreign residence and in inner, spiritual life.

Several things soften this placement in your chart. Jupiter aspects Saturn, and the texts treat a benefic aspect as the main relief for a lagna lord in the 12th. Saturn sits in Jupiter's sign, Sagittarius, which Saravali and modern writers (Foss, Braha) treat as favourable: a man of few words, soft in disposition, whose trust is earned and whose leadership matures with time. The one point to watch is Mars, which shares the house with Saturn. Classical texts see a malefic in company without a benefic aspect as the difficult case, and here Jupiter's aspect is what balances it.

Saturn also forms a Raja combination, linking the kendra and trikona lords, and a Dhana combination, linked to the 1st, 2nd, 5th, 9th and 11th lords. These are explained in the yogas section.

The practical reading is a call for budgeting, and for meaningful solitude, retreat or service, rather than a warning of hardship.

Planets in the rising sign and aspecting it

Mercury sits in your rising sign. It is retrograde and combust, which means it lies only about 6 degrees from the Sun and its light is overshadowed by the Sun's. Mercury is also your Atmakaraka, the planet with the highest degree in its sign. In Jyotish the Atmakaraka stands for the self and shows the core drive and main lessons of this life. Murthy describes a Mercury Atmakaraka as intelligent and drawn to material gain, and Rath advises keeping speech truthful. Combustion usually weakens an Atmakaraka, but Rath reads it as giving spiritual insight. The bright side of Mercury here is quick wit, mental ingenuity, humour and adaptability, with a kind and forgiving nature (Bhrigu Sutras). Ketu, the node placed in the 9th house, is said to cast its aspect onto the rising sign, and Ketu's aspect on Mercury is also a malefic one. Several authors deny that the nodes cast aspects at all, so give this point only light weight.

The Sun: courage, temper and money

The Sun is in Aquarius, in the 2nd house. Aquarius is an enemy sign for the Sun, and the Sun rules your 8th house, a house of difficulty. Its main strength is courage and firmness in action. Saravali describes such a person as very short-tempered but brave, and as unreliable in friendship and careful, even miserly, with money. Raman adds stubbornness, a strong sense of self-worth and rare faculties.

In the 2nd house the Sun ties money and speech to authority, and the texts disagree on the outcome. Jataka Parijata gives a liberal and eloquent speaker with property; Phaladeepika and Raman give poor earnings or stammering; Raman also gives good earnings that tend to leak away through waste. The Sun is aspected by Saturn. By its nature Saturn is a malefic, so the aspect is hard in manner, though Saravali links Saturn's aspect on the Sun with victory over enemies and honours. In the navamsa (D9) the Sun is debilitated, which leans its strength toward the demanding side.

The practical reading is courage with a need to manage temper and money. Be careful in official or legal disputes, and with spending for show.

The Moon, briefly

The Moon is in Sagittarius, in the 12th house, with Mars and Saturn. It is waning, so in this chart it counts as a natural malefic, though it is strong in the navamsa, where it is in its own sign, Cancer. Its full character is covered in the Mind section.

Birth day and birth tithi

You were born on a Saturday, the day of Saturn, which the traditional texts associate with a serious, enduring temperament. Jataka Bharanam also notes a readiness to anger that is worth watching. You were born on Krishna Ekadashi, which Jataka Bharanam describes as a tithi of devotion: a person devoted to the gods and the learned, who keeps vows, gives in charity, and is pure-hearted and capable. Think of these as small colourings of temperament, not as fate.

Synthesis of temperament

Taken together, the chart shows a person of outward steadiness and inner depth. The rising sign and Venus give a practical, persistent drive, and Shravana gives a receptive mind that learns by listening and teaches well when it is sure of its ground. Mercury, the self-planet, sits close to the Sun in your rising sign, which makes your intelligence quick and inquisitive but still learning to speak carefully. Your birth star group is the Rakshasa gana, which the texts describe as a forceful, independent temperament; this is a style, not a moral judgement. Saturn, your lagna lord, sits in the 12th house, so your self is tested through spending, distance and inner work, and Jupiter's aspect on the 12th house, with Jupiter vargottama (in the same sign in the birth chart and the navamsa, here Aries), gives a steady source of help. Your courage runs hot, as the Sun in Aquarius shows, and it needs managing.

When this area is most active

The Mars and Saturn sub-period from February 2028 to March 2029 is the most supportive stretch for your self, because Saturn, your lagna lord, is the sub-lord there and rules the 1st house. The double transit on the rising sign from July to December 2028, when Jupiter and Saturn both aspect it, is a classical marker for matters of the self. The Mars and Sun sub-period from October 2031 to February 2032 brings the Sun into focus; it is an active period rather than the best one for you.

3 Mind, emotions and inner life

The Moon's sign, house and nakshatra

Your Moon sits in Sagittarius, in the twelfth house of private life, retreat and the unseen. The inner world is rich, and it is also where you withdraw to recharge. Sagittarius gives an articulate, principled and energetic mind, drawn to poetry, the arts and questions of dharma (right living), one that responds to persuasion far more than to force. Older texts describe such a person as self-confident, grateful and attached to family, though they disagree on how that attachment plays out with relatives: one reads it as friction, another as closeness. Treat any tension there as something to watch, not a settled pattern.

The Moon is waning, about 51 degrees from the Sun. In this chart that makes it a natural malefic, and the texts treat a waning Moon as weaker, so its gifts tend to arrive with more effort.

The Moon's nakshatra (lunar star) is Mula, ruled by Ketu. Mula gives pride, steadiness and a strong drive to get to the root of things. You are direct, bold and reserved, quick to decisive action, and fond of comfort. Traditional texts treat the opening stretch of Mula as sensitive, but your Moon sits well past that point, so that caution does not apply here. Mula is widely feared in Indian families. The verses behind that fear are traditional cautions, and the practice pairs them with optional peace-making rites. They say nothing about anyone's safety.

Aspects and company of the Moon

Jupiter aspects the Moon, and this is the strongest support the Moon receives. Jupiter is a natural benefic, and Saravali links its aspect on the Moon with ministerial rank and steady judgement. Jupiter is the Moon's sign lord and sits in your fourth house (explained under Family). It also carries the twelfth house as a lord, so its help comes with some effort.

The Moon shares its house with Saturn, about four degrees away, and with Mars, about ten degrees away. Saturn is the closer companion. Raman links a waning Moon with Saturn to sloth and lethargy, so the pattern to notice is heaviness and a pull to withdraw when you are tired. Mars adds urgency, so when the Moon is strained, irritation can rise quickly.

Moon yogas

Sunapha is present: Mercury sits in the second house from the Moon and forms this yoga. Saravali and the Brihat Parashara Hora Shastra describe the person as intelligent, virtuous, peaceable and well regarded.

Mercury and thinking style

Mercury, the planet of intellect and speech, sits in your first house. Every text read describes this as a learned, intelligent and pleasant-spoken placement. It shows as quick wit, adaptability, curiosity and a light humour. As the Atmakaraka (the planet that leads on the soul's path), Mercury makes thinking central to who you are.

Mercury comes with caveats. It is retrograde, and it is about six degrees from the Sun, which makes it combust. The texts say a combust planet loses much of its benefit, though Raman suggests Mercury may partly escape this burn. In Capricorn, Mercury gives a practical, cautious, work-focused mind that often carries responsibility for others. Older texts are less generous here, describing a timid streak and restless dreams. Ketu's aspect on Mercury is malefic in nature, so attention can scatter or turn idiosyncratic. Some authors count node aspects and others do not, so keep this as a tendency rather than a rule. The nervous restlessness is something to manage, not a fixed trait.

Emotional needs and patterns

You feel things deeply and privately. You need quiet time and solitude to recharge, and a crowded, noisy stretch drains you. You respond best to reasoned, respectful talk and to meaning: learning, dharma, creative work. Pressure works against you. When the Moon is tired, the Saturn pull toward heaviness is the thing to watch. The steady Mula drive can harden into sharpness or sarcasm when left unchecked, and Ketu in the star can add an unusual edge to it. A practical habit helps: give your mind a regular rhythm of rest and reflection before deciding anything important.

When this area is most active

Two stretches stand out. From March 2029 to March 2030, Mars is the main period and Mercury the sub-period, so intellect, study and work come forward, with a supportive tone. From February to September 2032, Mars is the main period and the Moon the sub-period, which brings emotional life to the centre; the tone is neutral, so it may be a time to look at your own needs and rhythms. Both are points to compare with your own experience, not predictions.

4 Career and vocation

The 10th house and its lord

The tenth house, the house of profession and public standing, is Libra, and its lord is Venus. Venus sits in the third house, in Pisces, where it is exalted, the sign where a planet is at its strongest. The texts associate a tenth lord in the third with courage, initiative and communication: work that is spoken, written or performed, and a career built by taking the first step rather than waiting to be chosen. BPHS adds valour, eloquence and support from siblings and colleagues. Because Venus is exalted, these good results come through fully.

The placement carries one caveat. Rath reads a tenth lord in the sixth from the tenth (here the third house) as pointing to short-term service or contracts rather than a steady post, and Raman adds a slow rise when the lord is weak in the navamsa. The navamsa check is clear: Venus sits in the fourth house there, not the sixth, eighth or twelfth, so that slow-rise caveat does not apply.

Planets in the tenth and what aims at it

No planet occupies the tenth house. Only Jupiter aspects it, from the fourth house, as a full seventh-house aspect. A benefic aspect of this kind is described as bringing distinction, authority and learned or ethical work, such as teaching, law, writing or banking. Raman notes that a wide Jupiter aspect can be outweighed by Mars or the Sun aspecting the tenth exactly; neither does so here. Read it as protection and encouragement for the career: hopeful, but not a guarantee.

Career significators

Venus carries most of the career picture. It is the tenth lord, the Amatyakaraka (the planet that shows the counsel and the means by which one rises) and the yogakaraka for this Capricorn lagna, because it rules both the fifth house (a trikona) and the tenth (a kendra). Raman ties that combination to status and recognition through the houses it rules. Its dignity supports it: exalted in sign and moolatrikona in the navamsa. The classical Amatyakaraka texts treat a strong Amatyakaraka in its own or exalted sign as a sign of senior advisory roles, and Venus fits that. The tempering points are Mars's malefic aspect on Venus and Venus's shared house with Rahu, which the texts count against it. The pattern points toward advisory, managerial or official roles rather than any particular office.

Saturn is the lagna lord, placed in the twelfth house in Sagittarius with the Moon and Mars. A lagna lord in the twelfth means results come with more effort. Braha associates Saturn in the twelfth with a career that is not steady, and some texts link it with setbacks in trade. Raman links the second lord in the twelfth to government service and income through religious institutions. Jupiter's benefic aspect on Saturn softens the picture, and Saturn's sign gives a real teaching pull: the classics link Saturn in Sagittarius with teaching, sacred learning and leading a town or group.

The Sun is the other pointer the texts name for authority, government and respected institutions. It sits in Aquarius, an enemy sign, and is debilitated in the navamsa. Authority-type work is therefore something earned through steady effort rather than something that arrives easily.

Mars is friendly in its sign and moolatrikona in the navamsa, so it has real strength behind it. But it sits in the twelfth and rules the eleventh house of income from there. Raman associates Mars in the twelfth with less success in ordinary careers, and some modern astrologers see it suiting work abroad and in institutional settings. Raman also links the eleventh lord in the twelfth to business setbacks, which argues for care with independent ventures. The navamsa strength softens this.

Divisional chart (D10)

Table 7. Dashamsa (D10) positions, Aries lagna

Planet	D10 sign	D10 house	Dignity
Sun	Aquarius	11	Enemy's sign
Moon	Pisces	12	Neutral sign
Mars	Sagittarius	9	Friend's sign
Mercury	Taurus	2	Friend's sign
Jupiter	Aries	1	Friend's sign
Venus	Aquarius	11	Friend's sign
Saturn	Aquarius	11	Own sign
Rahu	Scorpio	8	Debilitated
Ketu	Taurus	2	Debilitated

D10 houses are counted from the dashamsa lagna. The D10 is very sensitive to the birth time: a few minutes can change its lagna and every house in it.

The dashamsa (D10) is Parashara's chart for power and position, and modern astrologers read it as the shape of working life. Its lagna is Aries and its tenth house is Capricorn, whose lord Saturn sits in Aquarius, the eleventh house, in moolatrikona. Saturn is therefore the one planet strong in D10 that is linked to the tenth house, and its periods bring professional growth, not guaranteed promotion. The D10 tenth house itself holds no planets.

The D10 lagna lord, Mars, sits in the ninth house (Sagittarius). Rath reads a D10 lagna lord in the ninth as independent work, being one's own boss and suited to business or self-directed work. Rahu sits in the eighth house of D10, and a malefic there favours service over business. These two signals point in different directions. Read together, they suggest a self-directed working style with some salaried or contract stretches.

D10 depends closely on the birth time, so treat its details as provisional until the birth time is confirmed. It refines the career picture already in the birth chart but does not replace the D1 tenth house, its lord and the tenth from the Moon, which carry the main weight.

These are broad families of work, drawn from the planets above.

- Venus line (the lagna-based reading, the strongest pointer): writing, speaking, communications and performing arts; music, dance, design, beauty and fashion; hospitality and food; work built on partnerships. The Brihat Jataka list is short, and Phaladeepika adds music, scents, ornament and poetry. A strong indicator in this reading brings gains with less effort.
- Mars line (reached from the Sun): work that calls for courage and technical skill, such as defence and security, engineering, machinery and metals, land and property, or surgery and medicine. Mars is strong in the navamsa, so this line also gives its gains with less effort.
- Moon-based line (the tenth from the Moon is Virgo, ruled by Mercury, which sits in the navamsa Leo, ruled by the Sun): government service, leadership and respected institutions, medicine and health products. Because the Sun is weak here, the gains from this line are modest and need steady effort.
- Jupiter's aspect on the tenth: teaching, law, the judiciary, writing, banking and publishing; Raman names advisory, teaching, legal, financial and publishing roles.
- Mercury in the first house: writing and scholarship. Mercury is combust, so treat it as a secondary pointer.

Working style

Venus in the third house suits working through initiative, communication and teams, with project-based or contract stretches as likely as a single steady post. The D10 pattern leans toward independence, while Saturn in the twelfth means effort and patience come before the rise. Because the eleventh lord sits in the twelfth, be careful with partners and money in independent ventures. Decisions about contracts, partnerships and business stay with you.

When this area is most active

The most area-specific stretch is the Mars-Saturn sub-period, February 2028 to March 2029. Saturn, the lagna lord and a career pointer, is the sub-period lord under Mars, which rules the eleventh house of income, and the texts describe this Saturn period as supportive. It overlaps with the first double-transit spell, late December 2028 to late March 2029, when Jupiter sits in the tenth house and Saturn aspects it from Aries. Classical astrologers treat a double transit of this kind as a marker for career matters. A second spell, October 2029 to January 2030, follows. These mark timing for effort and recognition, not promised promotions.

5 Finance and wealth

Your money picture turns on one fact: the house of expenses is busy. Three planets sit in the twelfth house, and it also holds the lord of your savings and the lord of your income. Your lagna lord, Saturn, is one of them. The chart points to money that comes through steady effort and needs deliberate protection to stay with you.

Table 9. The wealth houses

House	Matters	Sign and lord	Planets there	What it says
2nd	Savings, family money, speech	Aquarius; lord Saturn in the 12th (Sagittarius, neutral)	Sun	Hard to build and keep; Saturn, its lord, sits in the outgo house, so save steadily and carefully.
11th	Income and gains	Scorpio; lord Mars in the 12th (Sagittarius, friend)	none	Income is real but tends to flow out; Mars, its lord, sits in the expense house.
5th	Investments, intelligence, past merit	Taurus; lord Venus in the 3rd (Pisces, exalted)	none	Exalted Venus rules it; steady effort, not speculation, brings gains, and the texts disagree.
9th	Fortune and blessings	Virgo; lord Mercury in the 1st (Capricorn, neutral)	Ketu	Luck comes through your own effort, with strong Venus aspecting it; Ketu adds frugality.
12th	Expenses and outflow	Sagittarius; lord Jupiter in the 4th (Aries, friend)	Moon, Mars, Saturn	A busy house: three planets sit here, but Jupiter, its lord, supports it and softens the outflow.

The second house: savings and family money

Saturn rules this house and sits in the twelfth, so holding on to savings is the central test. The modern astrologer Braha links this placement with difficulty keeping money. Saturn also aspects the second house, and so the Sun there, which adds the same message: money comes through hard effort.

The Sun in this house is an enemy in its sign and rules the eighth house, which tilts its results toward the difficult side. The classical texts split here. Brihat Jataka describes great wealth that authority may take away, while Saravali describes little wealth. Raman, a modern astrologer, says money comes through hard work and tends to slip away. Saturn's ownership of the second house helps, since Phaladeepika says a strong lord of savings limits loss, but Saturn is only neutral in its sign. Saturn also shares the twelfth house with the Moon and Mars, and one older text ties wasteful spending to such company. There is one hopeful note: Saravali associates Saturn in Sagittarius with affluence in later life.

The eleventh house: income and gains

Mars rules this house and sits in the twelfth, in a friendly sign. It is strong in the navamsa, a finer chart used to judge inner strength, and Jupiter's benefic aspect supports it. The texts still agree that gains tend to flow out. Phaladeepika, Raman and Braha read this placement mostly negatively, and some older texts tie it to fines and penalties. The Moon and Saturn with Mars in the twelfth weaken it further. Brihat Parashara Hora Shastra also notes spending on good causes, and modern astrologers add that money may flow to travel, charity or distant ventures. Keeping a budget and clear records is the practical answer.

The fifth house: investments and intelligence

Venus rules this house from the third house, in the sign of its exaltation. Venus is the yogakaraka for Capricorn, the planet that rules both a trikona and a kendra, which makes it the most supportive planet in this chart. Its favourable results therefore carry weight. The texts differ, though. Saravali calls it very wealthy, Phaladeepika describes a poor outcome, and Raman says finances are not very successful. Venus sits in the third house of effort alongside Rahu, which suggests that gains come from steady work more than from speculation. Investment should be measured and patient.

The ninth house: fortune and blessings

Mercury rules this house and sits in the first house. The classical view is that wealth comes through one's own efforts, and riches when the lagna lord joins it and a benefic aspects it. Only part of that is present: Saturn does not join Mercury, and Ketu, a malefic, aspects it. Mercury is also close to the Sun, which dims it, so fortune comes mainly through effort. Jataka Parijata links this placement with pursuing wealth alongside learning.

Ketu sits in the ninth house as well. Phaladeepika describes an indigent outcome, Raman says Ketu here is frugal and saves much, and another text links it with wealth from foreign sources. Ketu in its sign is said to bring wealth even in a weak state.

The house is also well supported by aspects. Venus, strong in this chart, favours luck and resources, as Saravali describes, and Saturn's aspect adds prosperity in Raman's view.

The twelfth house: expenses and outflow

Jupiter rules this house and sits in the fourth, in a friendly sign. As a benefic, its aspect falls on the twelfth house itself and softens the three planets there. The texts link Jupiter in the fourth with wealth in grain and conveyances, and with income from property. Saravali does warn of heavy expenses under Jupiter's sign, so outgo tends to go toward home, property and transport. Jupiter's support keeps this house from being purely a drain.

Dhana and other wealth combinations

Dhana is a combination of the lords of the wealth houses. Here Mars, lord of income, and Saturn, lord of savings, sit together in the twelfth. Uttara Kalamrita links the second and eleventh lords with affluence, so the potential is real, but it sits in the house of outgo.

Chandra-Mangala, the Moon and Mars together, is a combination that Raman calls a strong stabiliser of finances. Raman's exception applies only when both planets are debilitated, and neither is, so the combination leans positive. Sunapha, with Mercury second from the Moon, points to self-acquired wealth, which Raman says can go either way.

Gains against expenses

Gains and outgo are closer than the gains alone suggest. The income house is weakened by its lord sitting in the expense house, while the expense house is busy but supported by Jupiter. Overall the chart tends to earn more than it keeps unless saving is deliberate.

Overall

Money here comes through skill, effort and steady work. The strongest supports are the exalted Venus, the aspects on the ninth house, and the wealth combinations. The main difficulty is that both the savings lord and the income lord sit in the house of outgo. Steady saving and caution with loans matter more than bold moves. Big money and loan decisions remain yours to make, ideally with a qualified adviser.

When this area is most active

From March 2029 to March 2030, a Mars period runs with a Mercury sub-period. Mercury rules the house of fortune and Mars the house of gains, so earnings through your own effort get focus. From May to September 2030, Jupiter and Saturn both touch the second house of savings, a good time to review budgets. From September 2030 to February 2031, Jupiter sits in the eleventh house of income and Saturn aspects it, so income matters draw attention, and the caution about gains flowing out matters most.

6 Health and vitality

This is a reading from traditional astrology, not medical advice. For any health concern, please see a qualified doctor.

Table 10. Traditional body correspondences

House	Matters	Sign	Body area (by house)	Body area (by sign)	Planets there	Care note
1st	Body and vitality	Capricorn	Head	Knees	Mercury	Steady routine of sleep, meals and movement; vitality grows with discipline and patience.
6th	Daily health and routine	Gemini	Abdomen and waist	Shoulders and arms	none	Regular daily routine, simple meals and small self-care habits give the best support.
8th	Recovery and resilience	Leo	Pelvic region	Upper abdomen	none	Rest days and gentle breaks through the week help recovery; patience matters most.
12th	Rest and sleep	Sagittarius	Feet	Hips and thighs	Moon, Mars, Saturn	Quiet evenings and an early wind-down protect sleep; late nights are best kept few.

Traditional kalapurusha correspondences (houses and signs from head to feet), general regions only. This is traditional astrology, not medical advice; health decisions stay with you and your doctor.

Overall constitution

Capricorn rises, so steadiness of body is read through Saturn, the lord of the rising sign. Saturn sits in the 12th house, in Sagittarius, a sign neutral to it, and a lagna lord in the 12th usually gets its results with more effort than ease. The gain is that stamina builds slowly and rewards a steady routine. Saturn is a natural malefic in this chart, so its tone is disciplined rather than light. Ketu also aspects the first house.

The Sun sits in Aquarius in the 2nd house. That is an enemy sign for it, and it is debilitated in the navamsa (D9) chart. The Sun is a natural malefic here, so its strength is best supported by regular meals, sleep and rest. The Moon sits in Sagittarius in the 12th house. It was waning at birth and is a natural malefic in this chart. In the D9 chart it sits in its own sign, Cancer, which steadies it.

The rising sign would change only if the birth time were off by about half an hour, so the lagna reading is fairly secure.

Traditional sensitivities

The 6th house (daily health). Its lord, Mercury, sits in the first house, which ties routine health to the self. Mercury is combust (close to the Sun) and retrograde. The texts describe a person who meets service and daily duties with discipline. Some texts read a more delicate constitution that needs care, while Rath reads the opposite, good health for the native. The 6th house itself is empty, but the Moon, Mars and Saturn all look toward it. Mars, which rules the 4th and 11th, casts its energy onto the 6th, read as drive and competitive strength rather than a fixed complaint. The Moon's aspect is read as care and emotional attention; it works better when the Moon is bright, and at birth it was waning.

The 8th house (recovery). It is empty, and its lord, the Sun, sits in the 2nd house. The texts point attention toward the face and vision. Jupiter, the lord of the 12th, aspects the 8th, and that is traditionally read as a protective influence on recovery.

The 12th house (rest). The Moon, Mars and Saturn gather here, so rest and sleep are central. Mars adds heat, and the texts associate it with restless sleep. Mars and Saturn together are read as a call for general caution, including in what one takes in. Jupiter, the lord of the 12th, sits in the 4th, a friendly placement, and its aspect on the 12th turns spending toward service and spiritual life.

When this area is most active

Take extra care of rest and routine in these stretches, which are demanding rather than the best time to push: the Mars-Sun sub-period, October 2031 to February 2032, when the Sun, lord of the 8th, is central; and the two spells when Jupiter and Saturn both focus on the 6th house, from December 2028 to March 2029 and from August to October 2032. In those times, a steady routine of rest and regular meals is a sensible habit.

7 Relationships, marriage and partner

The 7th house and its lord

The 7th house is Cancer, and its lord, the Moon, sits in the 12th house in Sagittarius, together with Mars and Saturn. The Moon is a natural malefic in this chart because it is waning, so its influence on partnership is more reserved. Several classical and modern texts agree that a 7th lord in the 12th points to less ease in marriage, expenses that need planning, and a partner from a different background. Partnership here asks for patience and careful budgeting.

Two factors soften this. Mercury's aspect reaches the 7th house, and Raman links a 7th lord aspected by Jupiter with a noble, virtuous spouse. Some texts also read a benefic aspect on the 7th house as protection for the house even when its lord sits in the 12th. No planet occupies the 7th house. Mars, Mercury and Rahu all aspect it.

Mars's aspect, from the 12th house, is the most active one. It adds passion, drive and heat to the partnership, and some texts tie it to friction. Mars rules the 4th and 11th houses, a mixed pair, and Jupiter's aspect on Mars helps channel its energy, so the texts ask for patience and fairness rather than predicting strain.

Mercury, which sits in the 1st house, aspects the 7th. Some texts suggest it brings a youthful, witty and communicative partner. Rahu, which sits with Venus, also aspects the 7th house.

Venus, the marriage planet

Venus is the strongest partnership factor in this chart. It is exalted in Pisces, is the yogakaraka for a Capricorn lagna (ruling the 5th and 10th houses), and is a natural benefic. It sits in the 3rd house together with Rahu. Mars, a natural malefic, aspects Venus, and Venus and Ketu aspect each other.

Foss describes the Pisces influence as love that can deepen into devotion and unconditional acceptance. Saravali adds that such a person keeps promises. For Venus in the 3rd house, Saravali also suggests a partner with a firm will, so the marriage may have a strong voice on one side and a clear sense of commitment on the other.

Darakaraka and the navamsa

Mars is the Darakaraka, the planet with the lowest degree in its sign among the chara karakas. The Darakaraka signifies the spouse, and the planet itself describes the partner. Mars here points to a partner who is energetic and independent. Jupiter, a benefic, aspects Mars, which the texts count as strengthening the Darakaraka. Murthy holds that the nature and friendship of the Darakaraka show the harmony of a couple. Some astrologers also judge the spouse from houses counted from the lagna, not from the karaka alone.

In the navamsa (D9), the chart Parashara assigns to the spouse, Capricorn is the 7th house, and its lord Saturn is placed in Taurus, the 11th house of the navamsa. Ketu occupies the navamsa 7th house. Saravali describes a partner ruled by Saturn as older and more serious, with harder qualities, and asks for patience. The navamsa refines the main chart rather than replacing it. Venus, the marriage planet, is moolatrikona in Libra in the navamsa, in its 4th house, which supports its promise in the main chart.

Reference	Mars counted from it	Manglik?
Lagna	12th house	Yes
Moon	1st house	Yes
Venus	10th house	No
Result	Present from 2 of 3	Cancelled by the calculator's rules (met: aspected by jupiter)

Manglik houses used: 1, 2, 4, 7, 8, 12.

The Manglik (Kuja) dosha is cancelled by Jupiter's aspect on Mars. Counted from the lagna and from the Moon, it is present, because Mars sits in the 12th house from the lagna and shares the Moon's house. Counted from Venus, Mars is 10th, so it is not present from that point. The Manglik houses are 1, 2, 4, 7, 8 and 12.

Older texts treat the dosha with more seriousness, while modern astrologers from Raman onward say it is over-applied. A matching Mars dosha in a partner's chart is the other widely shared cancellation, and most astrologers consider the dosha largely cancelled when both partners have it. Read it as a Mars theme in partnership: energy, independence and friction to channel. It is common and is only one factor among many in marriage matching.

Friendships (11th house)

The 11th house is Scorpio, ruled by Mars, which sits in the 12th house. Braha reads this as few friends, or friendships that need care, so a smaller and more selective circle of friends is the likely pattern. Mars sits in a friendly sign, Sagittarius, which softens the point. Rahu also aspects the 11th house.

When this area is most active

Three stretches stand out. The Venus sub-period within the Mars main period, from August 2030 to October 2031, brings the chart's strongest partnership planet into focus, and the texts treat it as supportive. Jupiter and Saturn both aspect the 7th house in two spells: September 2030 to February 2031, and June to October 2031. Classical texts treat these as timing markers for partnership, a time to look closely at commitments and shared finances rather than a forecast. Details are in the Timeline.

8 Family, home, siblings, children and education

Family of origin

The second house holds the family's shared resources and the way you were brought up to speak and handle money. Its lord, Saturn, is also your lagna lord (the rising sign, which stands for you), and Saturn sits in the twelfth, the house of retreat and distance. That placement suggests family foundations are built through patience and effort rather than ease. The Sun, the natural signifier of the father, also sits in this house, in Aquarius, a sign where the Sun is not at ease. Saturn's gaze falls on the same house, and classical texts link that aspect with careful handling of savings and speech. The Sun's presence makes that call for care a little stronger. The overall reading is of a family that values discipline and needs to take care with money, rather than one without support.

Mother and home

The fourth house is home, comfort and the mother. Its lord, Mars, sits in the twelfth, a placement the texts read as a home life that often lies away from the birthplace or in a quieter, more private setting. Mars is a natural malefic in this chart, but he rules the fourth (a kendra, or angular house) and the eleventh, so he carries real weight for the home. Jupiter is the stronger support: it sits in the fourth itself, in a friendly sign, and this is one of the most consistently positive placements. Traditional readings describe a peaceful, values-centred home, a respected mother and inner contentment. Property and comforts are mentioned as traditional indications, not promises. The Moon, which stands for the mother, sits in the twelfth with Mars and Saturn and is waning, so the mother's line tends to be quieter and more private than the home line. Some texts note friction with the mother, while others describe a happy bond. Both views are worth holding.

Father and fortune

The ninth house is the father, fortune and guidance. Its lord, Mercury, sits in the first house in Capricorn. It is retrograde (moving backward in the sky) and very close to the Sun, so it is combust, meaning its light is dimmed by the Sun. Combustion softens Mercury's help, so the father bond is more about shared thinking and communication than easy comfort. Mercury is a natural benefic and rules the sixth and the ninth, which makes its role mixed: a good link with a demanding edge. Modern astrologers describe a close and warm bond with the father, and that is the main reading here. Ketu, a node (a shadow point in the sky), sits in the ninth in Virgo. Some texts read it as a strain on the father's influence that asks for patience. Its effect is a minor note, since some authors do not count node aspects at all. The Sun, the natural father signifier, sits in an enemy sign in the second house, so the father line carries some friction alongside its warmth.

Siblings

The third house is siblings and courage. Its lord, Jupiter, sits in the fourth in a friendly sign, which points to siblings being a source of support when the family is well ordered. Venus, exalted in Pisces, sits in this house too. Venus here is read as warm, affectionate sibling ties, especially with sisters, and the classical texts that speak of good brothers point the same way. Rahu, also in the third, is one of this house's best placements for initiative, nerve and success through one's own efforts. The texts are consistent, though, that the sibling line is where Rahu needs the most care, and clear communication helps. Mars, the significator of younger siblings, aspects this house and adds energy, drive and sometimes competition. The Moon, which stands for brothers and sisters, sits in the twelfth, a reserved setting. Mars also rules the eleventh, the house of gains and older friends and relatives, so the sibling theme and the wider support network share one planet.

Children

The fifth house is children, creativity and intelligence. It is empty, and its lord, Venus, is exalted but sits in the third with Rahu. The children line is therefore strong in dignity but shares its house with a node and a malefic aspect from Mars. Venus is also the yogakaraka for this lagna, a planet that rules both an angular house and a trine house, which is the best functional role. Traditional and modern authors agree that a well-placed fifth lord supports affection, creativity and good children. Some texts also mention worry about children when this lord is afflicted. Here Venus is strong, so that caution applies only lightly. Jupiter, the significator of children, sits in the fourth in a friendly sign and is strong in the navamsa (the divisional chart used for marriage and deeper fortune), which supports family-centred joy. Mars's aspect on Venus is read as drive that needs channelling, not as a sign of difficulty.

Education

Education draws on several houses at once. The fourth house is the foundation of learning, and Mars rules it from the twelfth. That often points to study that takes place away from home or in quieter, more focused settings. The fifth house, intelligence and study, is ruled by Venus, exalted, which supports creative and artistic learning. Mercury, the planet of reasoning, is combust, so its sharpness is softened, and learning is best built through steady, repeated practice rather than quick grasping. Jupiter sits in the fourth and is traditionally linked with learning and a religious or philosophical leaning. Taken together, the picture is of a learner who grows through steady effort, with artistic and reflective subjects coming naturally.

When this area is most active

Three stretches stand out. Mars-Rahu, the current period to March 2027, is active for this area but not supportive by itself. From March 2027 to February 2028, the Mars-Jupiter period is mixed: Jupiter is a significator here and rules the third and the twelfth, so attention turns to siblings and effort alongside demands on the home. From June to October 2027, Jupiter and Saturn both pass over the fourth house, a traditional marker for home and mother matters. The most supportive stretch is the Mars-Venus period, August 2030 to October 2031, when Venus, exalted and the yogakaraka, is the sub-lord and rules the fifth, so children, creativity and study get their strongest timing.

9 Spirituality, the 8th and 12th houses, hidden talents and foreign links

The 8th house: hidden matters and deep change

The 8th house governs what is hidden, research and sudden change. Its lord, the Sun, sits in the 2nd house in Aquarius, an enemy sign, so it works through money, family and speech. Classical texts link an 8th lord in the 2nd with limited wealth, friction at home and trouble with the eyes, teeth or speech. For a spiritual path, that points to a search that asks for patience at home and careful speech. The Sun is a functional malefic for this lagna, so its difficult results come more fully than its good ones.

The house itself is empty. Only the Sun and Jupiter aspect it. The Sun's aspect adds authority, pride or pressure, and as a malefic aspect it presses rather than supports. Jupiter's aspect is the gentler one: it brings protection, growth and wisdom to the house. That is a hopeful tendency, not a guarantee. Careful money management and patient communication at home suit this placement.

The 9th house: dharma, faith and teachers

The 9th lord, Mercury, sits in the lagna, which classical texts count among the more fortunate placements for a house lord. It suggests a devout, principled and teachable nature, with faith that shows in daily conduct. Classical texts also describe Mercury here as inclined to scripture and virtue. Some modern astrologers add that this can lead to heading a religious body.

Two things temper this. Mercury is retrograde and combust, only about six degrees from the Sun, so its light is dimmed and its expression turns inward. Mercury also rules the 6th house of difficulty, and the classical view is that this side acts too. Ketu, which sits in the 9th, aspects Mercury, which adds a sceptical, self-questioning edge.

Ketu in the 9th is classically adverse for fortune and for the father. Modern readings describe an independent, sometimes sceptical relationship with tradition, teachers and the father, and a fortune built through one's own choices. Ketu sits in Virgo, a sign whose dignity for the nodes is disputed, so this reading stays tentative. Saturn's malefic aspect lessens the house's good results. Venus, exalted and a yogakaraka, aspects it with a benefic aspect, so the 9th is both tested and supported. Classical texts hold that fortune from such aspects tends to come away from home, unless the aspecting planet rules the 9th. Neither Venus nor Saturn does, so travel or distant teachers are the likely theme.

The 12th house: retreat, release and discipline

Jupiter, the 12th lord, sits in the 4th house in Aries, a friendly sign. Classical texts see losses around property and little ease from the mother. Modern astrologers add living abroad and a strong pull toward liberation, which is where the spiritual weight of the 12th lies. Jupiter also aspects the 12th, turning spending toward charity, service and spiritual practice.

Three planets occupy the 12th: the Moon, Mars and Saturn, all in Sagittarius. The Moon is linked here to retreat and release (covered under Mind). Mars in the 12th is a draining placement in classical texts, linked to expense and deception. Disciplined practice suits it, and its energy works best behind the scenes. Saturn, the lagna lord, is only neutral here, not in its own sign, so the strongest form of the claim that Saturn brings success in higher consciousness does not quite apply. The pull toward yoga and philosophy comes more clearly later in life.

Karakamsha and the Atmakaraka

Mercury is the Atmakaraka, the planet with the highest degree in its sign, which stands for the self and the soul's core drive. Classical texts say an Atmakaraka that is exalted or joined by benefics points toward release and holy residence. Here Mercury is benefic in nature but is aspected by Ketu, a malefic, so the softer reading applies only in part. Modern astrologers read a combust Atmakaraka as a source of spiritual insight, and a retrograde one as a deep, older desire carried into this life. Together these fit a seeker who looks inward and works things out personally.

The navamsa (D9) placement of the Atmakaraka is karakamsha, and here it is in Leo. Classical texts link a Leo karakamsha to wild animals, with tigers or dogs named depending on the text. Read symbolically, this is a call for care around animals and around one's own wild side, not a prediction of any event. A benefic aspect on it softens the reading.

Hidden talents

Several strong navamsa placements point to quiet talents that show in private work. Mars and Venus are both moolatrikona in the navamsa, the Moon is in its own sign there, and Jupiter is vargottama, the same sign in both the birth chart and the navamsa. That adds weight to its wisdom and teaching. The Mars and Saturn pairing in the 12th is read classically as hardship and quarrelsomeness, but classical texts say good navamsa placements improve such results, and Mars is strong there. The likely outcome is endurance under pressure, skill with metal or mechanical things, and steady inner work done without fuss.

Foreign links

Foreign links appear here only where the sources mention them. Jupiter, as 12th lord in the 4th, is read by modern astrologers as a sign of living abroad. One modern source frames Mars in the 12th as foreign work and spiritual discipline rather than mere loss. The fortune of the 9th, as noted above, is classically linked to places away from home.

When this area is most active

Three stretches stand out. From November 2026 to January 2027, Jupiter and Saturn both aspect the 12th, a classical timing marker for retreat and release, so this is a good time for disciplined practice. From October 2027 to February 2028, the 12th is followed straight into the 9th: Jupiter moves into the house of dharma and teachers while Saturn aspects it, which asks for reflection on teachers and tradition. From March to August 2030, the Mars-Ketu sub-period brings Ketu, sitting in the 9th, to the front. It is active for this area but not supportive by itself, and it suits a sceptical search more than a settled one.

10 Yogas and doshas

Your chart carries several planetary combinations. The most important ones involve Mars and Saturn, which sit together with the Moon in the 12th house, and Venus, which is the chart's most supportive planet.

Table 12. Yogas present, with their weight

Yoga	How it forms here	Weight (library)
Raja yoga (angle and trine lords)	Mars (lord of 4/11) and Saturn (lord of 1/2): conjunct; Moon (lord of 7) and Saturn (lord of 1/2): conjunct	Common. PVR (11.7.2) says the conjunction of a quadrant lord and a trine lord is found in many charts and its magnitude depends on strength and closeness.
Yogakaraka	Venus rules the 5th and 10th, placed in the 3rd (Pisces, exalted)	Structural: half the lagnas have a single-planet yogakaraka (Cancer, Leo, Taurus, Libra, Capricorn, Aquarius per Raman HJH), so its presence is fixed by the lagna and says nothing by itself.
Chandra-Mangala	-	Raman gives it significant weight for wealth (How to Judge a Horoscope ch. V); Varahamihira gives it little and mostly adverse significance (per Raman).
Sunapha		Varahamihira counts 31 combinations of the five planets for Sunapha (Brihat Jataka 13.4; Raman no. 4 remarks); Saravali 13.3 says 30. The yoga is common because any of five planets will do. Raman weighs it by the nature...
Dhana yoga (wealth-house lords)	Mars (lord of 4/11) and Saturn (lord of 1/2): conjunct	Common in some form. Raman's note to Bhavartha Ratnakara ch. 2 st. 4 says the majority of horoscopes have the weaker form that gives humble wealth.
Parivartana	exchanges: [{"planets": ["Mars", "Jupiter"], "houses": [12, 4], "type": "Dainya"}]	Phaladeepika's count: 28 of the 66 possible exchanges are Maha, 8 Khala and 30 Dainya.

Formation from the calculator; weight from the library entry for each yoga.

Yogas

Raja yoga: angle and trine lords joined. The classical Raja Yoga, a link for standing, authority and prosperity, forms when the lord of an angle (1st, 4th, 7th or 10th house) is linked with the lord of a trine (1st, 5th or 9th). Here it forms twice. Mars, lord of the 4th, sits with Saturn, your lagna lord, about 5.6 degrees apart. The Mars link is the stronger one: Mars is moolatrikona (in its strongest sign) in the navamsa, the divisional chart that shows finer strength. The Moon, lord of the 7th, sits with Saturn as a second link of the same kind. Two points pull the Mars link back. Mars also owns the 11th house, which the stricter texts treat as weakening such a link, and both planets sit in the 12th house, which the Spirituality section covers. Classical texts speak of kingship; modern writers read it as high position and recognition. Treat it as a tendency toward responsibility and recognition, most active in the periods of Mars and Saturn. The Mars period runs from 28 September 2025 to 27 September 2032. The Rahu sub-period running now ends in March 2027.

Yogakaraka: Venus. For Capricorn, Venus rules the 5th (trine) and the 10th (angle), which makes it the chart's yogakaraka, a single planet that serves both. It is exalted in Pisces and moolatrikona in the navamsa, which is real strength. Two things temper it. Venus sits in the 3rd house, neither an angle nor a trine, and it is joined with Rahu, while Mars aspects it. Raman, a modern astrologer, says a yogakaraka joined or aspected by malefic lords loses some of its support. So its periods are likely to bring growth and recognition in proportion to its strength, with some friction in the mix rather than an easy run.

Chandra-Mangala: Moon with Mars. The Moon and Mars share Sagittarius in the 12th house, about 10 degrees apart. This gives drive, earning energy and an enterprising, emotionally intense temperament. The classical texts (Varahamihira, Phaladeepika) give mostly difficult readings of this yoga. Raman, a modern astrologer, counts it as a good wealth yoga when the planets are strong and sit in the 2nd, 9th, 10th or 11th houses. Here it falls in the 12th, so read it as drive that needs balance rather than a promise of wealth.

Sunapha: Mercury. Mercury, a planet other than the Sun, sits in the 2nd house from the Moon (Capricorn), so Sunapha forms. The texts link it with wealth earned by one's own effort, intelligence and standing among one's own people. Mercury is a natural benefic, but it is retrograde (moving backwards in the sky) and combust, meaning close enough to the Sun (about 6 degrees) to be overpowered by it. The texts say a combust forming planet makes the results mixed. So this is a supportive yoga with mixed results: self-earned progress is the theme. Mercury's own character is covered under Mind.

Dhana: Saturn with Mars. Saturn, lord of the 2nd house (wealth), and Mars, lord of the 11th (gains), are joined. That pairing is the core of the classical wealth links, and Mars's strong navamsa position helps the earning side. It shows capacity to earn and build resources, most visibly in the periods of these two planets. Bhavartha Ratnakara, a classical text on this yoga, itself says most charts get modest rather than great wealth, so read it as steady earning, not riches.

Parivartana: Mars and Jupiter exchange signs. Mars sits in Sagittarius, Jupiter's sign (12th house), and Jupiter sits in Aries, Mars's sign (4th house). An exchange like this ties the two houses closely, each planet acting for the other. Because Jupiter is lord of the 12th, Phaladeepika classes it as the difficult kind, linked with effort, obstacles and tension around home and the 12th-house matters. Frawley, a modern writer, treats exchanges as generally strengthening both planets. Put it plainly: the result depends on the effort put in, and it points to working through obstacles. Jupiter's effect in the 4th is covered under Family.

Doshas

Table 13. Dosha checks

Dosha	Status	Comment (from the calculator)
Manglik (Kuja)	Cancelled	Counted from Lagna, Moon only (2 of 3; Mars 12th from the lagna, 1st from the Moon, 10th from Venus); cancellation met: aspected by jupiter
Kaal Sarp	Absent	2 planets lie outside the Rahu-Ketu axis (Jupiter, Venus), so neither the full nor the partial form applies
Pitra (ancestral)	Present	Flags met: lights or nodes with mars saturn: Moon+Mars, Moon+Saturn
Guru-Chandal	Absent	Not formed in this chart
Shrapit	Absent	Not formed in this chart
Angarak	Absent	Not formed in this chart
Ghata	Present	Flag only; no reference points or cancellations computed
Ganda Moola	Present	Flag only; no reference points or cancellations computed

Sade Sati and Dhaiya are dated in the Timeline.

Manglik (Mars in a sensitive house). Counted from the lagna and from the Moon, Mars sits in a Manglik house (12th from the lagna, 1st from the Moon). Counted from Venus it does not. The sensitive houses are 1, 2, 4, 7, 8 and 12. So the dosha is present from two of the three reference points. It is cancelled under the standard rule here because Jupiter aspects Mars. The classical texts describe friction in marriage from this placement; modern authorities from Raman onward say the label is often over-applied and treat it as one factor among many. A matching Manglik in a partner's chart is also widely taken to soften it. The marriage side is covered under Relationships.

Kaal Sarp: not present. Kaal Sarp would need all seven planets on one side of the Rahu-Ketu axis. Jupiter and Venus sit on the other side, so the pattern is absent in both full and partial forms. It is a 20th-century idea, not found in the major classical texts, and Raman gave it little weight in individual charts.

Pitra dosha: raised in the broad modern sense only. The Moon sits with Mars and with Saturn, which the broader modern definition counts. The classical form, from the BPHS, centres on the Sun, the 5th house and the 9th and 10th lords, and concerns having children. The Sun is not joined with Saturn, so that classical form is not raised here. Ancestral rites are a voluntary practice of remembrance, not a required fix. This is not a statement about family or children.

Ghata (Mars with Saturn): a modern label. Mars and Saturn sit together, about 5.6 degrees apart, in the 12th house. Practitioners call this "ghat dosha" and read it as forceful friction, but it has no classical standing as a natal dosha. The most useful reading is tension between drive and restraint, which can turn into steady perseverance. The same name is also used for an unrelated timing table, so only this natal meaning is in view.

Ganda moola: present only under the broad reading. The Moon is in Mula, one of the six nakshatras (lunar mansions) that popular practice counts as ganda moola, so the broad reading applies. The classical rule is much narrower: a few ghatikas (short time units) at the junction of Jyeshtha and Mula, linked in the texts with the wellbeing of the child or a parent at birth. The Moon is about 10 degrees into Mula, away from that junction. The Moon also moves slowly, so this is less sensitive to small birth-time errors than the lagna is. Purification rites (shanti) are an optional family custom, which the classical texts describe as removing the effect. Nothing in this chart calls for them.

11 Timeline

How timing works

Vimshottari dashas are nine planetary periods of fixed length, run in a set order and starting from the lord of the Moon's lunar mansion (nakshatra) at birth. The Moon was in Mula, so the first period was Ketu's, with about 1.6 years still to run at birth. A period brings forward what its planet rules and signifies in this chart: the houses it governs, the house it sits in, and the planets it joins or is aspected by. Slow transits of Saturn and Jupiter act as timers inside those periods. They show when promises are tested or triggered, and the texts read them that way only where they say so.

Table 14. Vimshottari mahadashas

Mahadasha	From	To	Age	Planet's role in this chart
Ketu	14 Feb 1988 (birth)	28 Sep 1989	0-1	Node in the 9th (Virgo); acts for its sign lord Mercury
Venus	28 Sep 1989	28 Sep 2009	1-21	Lord of the 5th and 10th (yogakaraka); exalted in the 3rd; with Rahu; Amatyakaraka
Sun	28 Sep 2009	28 Sep 2015	21-27	Lord of the 8th; enemy's sign in the 2nd
Moon	28 Sep 2015	28 Sep 2025	27-37	Lord of the 7th; neutral sign in the 12th; with Mars, Saturn
Mars (now)	28 Sep 2025	27 Sep 2032	37-44	Lord of the 4th and 11th; friend's sign in the 12th; with Moon, Saturn
Rahu	27 Sep 2032	28 Sep 2050	44-62	Node in the 3rd (Pisces); acts for its sign lord Jupiter
Jupiter	28 Sep 2050	28 Sep 2066	62-78	Lord of the 3rd and 12th; friend's sign in the 4th
Saturn	28 Sep 2066	28 Sep 2085	78-97	Lord of the 1st and 2nd (lagna lord); neutral sign in the 12th; with Moon, Mars
Mercury	28 Sep 2085	29 Sep 2102	97-114	Lord of the 6th and 9th; neutral sign in the 1st, retrograde; Atmakaraka

Balance at birth: Ketu 1.62 years. Ages are completed years; Vimshottari years of 365.25 days.

Each past-period note below is a check to compare with your own life, not a claim about what happened.

Ketu period, Feb 1988 to Sep 1989 (age 0-1). Ketu sits in the 9th house, a trikona, one of the fortunate houses alongside the 1st and 5th, and Venus's benefic aspect reaches it. That supports the good side of this period. The texts also describe Ketu as unsettled and prone to sudden change, a picture that Ketu in Virgo sharpens. This stretch is hard to remember directly, so the useful question is whether family accounts of those first years include a move or a disrupted household.

Venus period, Sep 1989 to Sep 2009 (age 1-21). Venus is exalted in Pisces and is the chart's yogakaraka, a planet that rules both an angle and a trine for Capricorn, which the texts treat as among the most supportive planets. Its one caution is its placement in the 3rd house, where the texts speak of reserve with money and of a spouse who takes the lead. The period is therefore mixed, with the strong side dominant. It often coincides with comfort at home, family celebrations, a growing sense of possessions and the arts, and recognition from people in authority. Venus also carries the role the texts call the Amatyakaraka, linked with counsel, profession and rising through work. Does this fit your childhood and early youth?

Sun period, Sep 2009 to Sep 2015 (age 21-27). The Sun is in Aquarius, an enemy sign, weakened in the navamsa (the ninth-division chart), aspected by Saturn, and it rules the 8th house. The texts read a Sun in this state on its harder side: friction with authority, concern for a parent's wellbeing, and moves away from home. This period often coincides with pressure at work or under a difficult manager, family strain, or a change of city, if those match your twenties. The texts ask for patience with superiors and a steady routine of rest.

Moon period, Sep 2015 to Sep 2025 (age 27-37). The Moon is waning, sits in the 12th house with Mars and Saturn, and rules the 7th. The texts tie a waning Moon in the 12th to a more inward life, money strain, concern for the mother and friction with those in authority. Jupiter's aspect and the Moon's own sign, Sagittarius, give some steadiness to home life. The period often coincides with financial pressure, family worries and a need to pull back, and the texts ask for extra care of health and vitality. Does this match your late twenties and early thirties?

The Mars period, Sep 2025 to Sep 2032 (current)

Mars is the period lord now, and it shapes the next six years more than any other planet. It sits in the 12th house with the Moon and Saturn, a crowded placement that the texts read as one of expense, distance and rest. It rules the 4th (home, land, vehicles) and the 11th (gains, friendships, elder siblings). A well-placed 4th lord points to gains in property, while the 11th lordship is one the texts read as more demanding for this lagna.

Mars is a friend in Sagittarius and strong in the navamsa, so its good results show in part despite the 12th house, and Jupiter aspects it. It forms a link with Saturn, the lagna lord, of a kind the texts associate with rising responsibility and recognition. Both planets sit in the 12th, so this is potential rather than guaranteed. Mars is also counted as Manglik from the lagna and from the Moon, and that is cancelled because Jupiter aspects it.

The texts disagree on shape. BPHS makes a Mars period strongly good or strongly bad according to dignity and house. Phaladeepika and Jataka Parijata describe a mix of gains through land and fighting, alongside quarrels with siblings and heat-related complaints. The mixed reading fits this chart best: property and effort on one side, expense, friction and a need for health care on the other. Mars sits in the first ten degrees of its sign, so its results tend to arrive early, and the texts expect some strain toward the close of even a good Mars period. The realistic expectation is an active, property-minded early phase, with steadiness and health care needed later.

Sub-periods of the Mars period

Table 15. Sub-periods (antardashas) within the Mars mahadasha

Sub-period	From	To	Sub-lord's role and tone
Mars-Mars	28 Sep 2025	24 Feb 2026	Rules 4, 11, in the 12th: kendra lord, lord of 3/6/11; mixed or demanding
Mars-Rahu (now)	24 Feb 2026	14 Mar 2027	In the 3rd: node; acts through its sign lord Jupiter
Mars-Jupiter	14 Mar 2027	18 Feb 2028	Rules 3, 12, in the 4th: lord of a dusthana (6/8/12), lord of 3/6/11; mixed or demanding
Mars-Saturn	18 Feb 2028	29 Mar 2029	Rules 1, 2, in the 12th: lagna lord; supportive
Mars-Mercury	29 Mar 2029	26 Mar 2030	Rules 6, 9, in the 1st: trikona lord, lord of a dusthana (6/8/12), lord of 3/6/11; supportive

Sub-period	From	To	Sub-lord's role and tone
Mars-Ketu	26 Mar 2030	22 Aug 2030	In the 9th: node; acts through its sign lord Mercury
Mars-Venus	22 Aug 2030	22 Oct 2031	Rules 5, 10, in the 3rd: yogakaraka, trikona lord, kendra lord; supportive
Mars-Sun	22 Oct 2031	27 Feb 2032	Rules 8, in the 2nd: lord of a dusthana (6/8/12); mixed or demanding
Mars-Moon	27 Feb 2032	27 Sep 2032	Rules 7, in the 12th: kendra lord; neutral

Tone is from the sub-lord's house rulership for this lagna; the mahadasha lord colours every sub-period.

Mars within Mars, Sep 2025 to Feb 2026 (past). The texts describe the start of a Mars period as hot and quarrelsome: friction with siblings and friends, heat-related complaints and trouble with officials. The strong navamsa gave ambition support through government or property, so this stretch often coincides with a driven, short-tempered beginning. Does the winter of 2025 to 2026 match?

Mars within Rahu, Feb 2026 to Mar 2027 (current). Rahu rules no house, so it acts through the 3rd house it sits in, through its sign lord Jupiter (in the 4th), and through the planets near it. The 3rd is one of Rahu's better placements, linked with courage, initiative and a long, active life, at some cost to harmony with siblings. Most older sources describe this Rahu stretch through its troubled side alone: health strain, misunderstandings, legal and official pressure, and losses. BPHS allows good results when Rahu is well placed, and this placement, in a benefic's sign, qualifies. Against that, Mars and Ketu both aspect Rahu, which keeps the difficult side alive. The net reading is mixed and leans toward caution. Take care with legal paperwork, travel, money and people of doubtful intent, and keep up health checks. This is traditional astrology, not medical advice. Remedies (optional): Naga puja, feeding Brahmins, or Mrityunjaya japa, the practices the texts list for this stretch, taken as traditional observances rather than guarantees.

Mars within Jupiter, Mar 2027 to Feb 2028. Jupiter sits in the 4th, a kendra and home house, in Aries, which is Mars's own sign, and it is vargottama (the same sign in the navamsa). That gives a welcome easing: support from mentors, home and property matters settling, and growth in faith and learning. Jupiter also rules the 3rd and 12th, so it is not a clean benefic for this lagna. Mars and Jupiter exchange signs, a Dainya exchange, a kind the texts read as lower in strength and as pointing to effort and obstacles around the 12th-house matters. The net reading leans favourable, with strain at the edges.

Mars within Saturn, Feb 2028 to Mar 2029. This is the most demanding Mars sub-period. Saturn sits in the 12th with the Moon and Mars. It is the lagna lord, and it also rules the 2nd house, which the texts link with the need for extra care of health and vitality. The softeners are real: Saturn rules the lagna, Jupiter aspects it, and its link with Mars is one the texts associate with recognition and with building resources. The practical emphasis is to avoid clashes with authorities, review legal and property papers, keep rest and routine, and look after family.

Mars within Mercury, Mar 2029 to Mar 2030. Mercury sits in the lagna, which the texts agree makes for a learned, quick and pleasant-spoken person. It rules the 9th (a trikona) and the 6th. It is, however, retrograde and combust, too close to the Sun to shine, so its results come with less ease and more effort. The stretch suits study, trade, negotiation and settling disputes. The texts want care with rivals, careless speech and travel, and a general note to keep up rest and health checks. Mercury also forms Sunapha, a yoga the texts read as earning through one's own effort.

Mars within Ketu, Mar 2030 to Aug 2030. A short stretch. Ketu sits in the 9th, a trikona, in Virgo, and Venus's benefic aspect reaches it. The older texts describe Ketu periods as turbulent and sudden, with departures from home. Here the placement and the benefic aspect tilt toward modest gains, government favour and some land, but the caution about sudden change still applies, so keep plans flexible, keep travel to what is needed, and avoid stirring up family disputes.

Mars within Venus, Aug 2030 to Oct 2031 (the key stretch). Venus is the chart's most supportive planet: the yogakaraka, exalted in Pisces in the 3rd house. It rules the 5th (children, creative work, fortune) and the 10th (career and standing), so this stretch reaches the chart's own matters of children and career. It sits four houses from Mars, a relationship the texts count as a kendra link, and Mars aspects it, so Mars's main results show here. That combination is why this is the key stretch of the next decade. The texts describe comforts, vehicles, jewellery, recognition from people in authority and a settled home life.

Two points belong on the cautious side. Rahu shares Venus's house, which the texts tie to strain in family life and money, and Mars and Ketu both aspect Venus. The timing also helps: Saturn in Taurus, the 6th from the Moon and one of its better transits, covers the whole stretch, and the Venus yogini period is running. Double transits fall on the 5th, 7th and 11th houses between Sep 2030 and Feb 2031, and again from Jun to Oct 2031. During Jupiter's passage through the Moon's 12th house, Sep 2030 to Feb 2031, the texts' warning about grief and anxiety around travel applies. Jupiter's move into Sagittarius, the Moon's own sign and its moolatrikona, softens that from Feb to Jun 2031. Remedies (optional): give a cow or female buffalo in charity, the traditional practice the texts list for this stretch.

Mars within Sun, Oct 2031 to Feb 2032. The Sun sits in the 2nd, in an enemy sign, and rules the 8th. The texts give this stretch honour from authorities, fame won through boldness and a brief opening for leadership, along with blame, quarrels with elders and heat-related complaints. Here the enemy sign and the 8th lordship keep the harder side more present. Use it for initiative, but with tact toward elders and superiors, and attention to heat-related complaints.

Mars within Moon, Feb 2032 to Sep 2032. The period closes with the Moon's sub-period. The older texts read it as mostly favourable: comforts, home improvements, festivities and favour from authorities. In this chart the Moon is waning, sits in the 12th and rules the 7th. The texts associate a weak Moon in that position with money strain and worry for family, along with the need for extra care of health and vitality. Home comfort and rest are the bright side.

The Rahu period that follows, Sep 2032 onward

Rahu's period follows directly after Mars. Rahu rules no house, so it works through the 3rd house it sits in, through its companion Venus, and through its sign lord Jupiter. The texts read a Rahu period as unsettled unless Rahu is well placed, in which case it can give power, wealth and recognition, often through foreign contacts or the state. Here the placement is good: the 3rd is an upachaya house (one that improves with time), Rahu sits in a benefic's sign, and it is joined with Venus, the yogakaraka, which the texts say can make Rahu act more like a yogakaraka. Mars and Ketu aspect it, so that lift is partial. The texts also say gains in a Rahu period can be unstable and often come under strain toward the end. Overall the period leans good: ambition, change and unusual opportunities, with careful handling of gains, health, family matters and dealings with authority.

Sub-periods of the Rahu period

Rahu within Rahu, Sep 2032 to Jun 2035. Rahu's own sub-period opens its period. The older texts describe it as disturbed, with family strain, health concerns in the household, distance from home and loss of money. The 3rd-house placement gives the good side: a high position, royal favour, happiness from spouse and children, and growth of property. The Venus link is a real support, so the stretch is a disturbed opening with a favourable core. Advice: care with health, family harmony and paperwork with officials.

Rahu within Jupiter, Jun 2035 to Nov 2037. Jupiter sits in the 4th house, a kendra and home house, and is vargottama. That placement gives the good side: steadiness of mind, royal favour, growth of wealth, vehicles, pilgrimages, and happiness from spouse, children and grandchildren. Jupiter is the second sign from Rahu, which the texts count as a less supportive position for this sub-period, and it rules the 3rd and 12th. Near its end the texts mention some bodily strain and royal displeasure. Treat that as something to watch, with a health check, rather than as a forecast. Net: one of the better parts of the Rahu period.

From the computed ephemeris to 24 Oct 2032. A planet re-entering a sign it just left is a retrograde return.

Saturn now. Saturn is in Pisces from Nov 2026 to Jun 2027, which is the 4th house from the Moon and the 3rd from the lagna. The texts read the 4th from the Moon (the kantaka or ardhashtama stretch, the "small Dhaiya") as a strain on home life, close relationships and money, with a restless mind. Saturn is the lagna lord here, which the texts say softens its harsher results, and its effects are read as coming mainly in the last part of its sign.

Saturn's next moves. It enters Aries in Jun 2027, the 5th from the Moon and debilitated, where the texts intensify the difficulty: concern for children, a dip in money, confused thinking and quarrels. It returns to Pisces from Oct 2027 to Feb 2028, then stays in Aries, debilitated, until Aug 2029. Taurus, the 6th from the Moon, is one of Saturn's good transits, with relief from enemies and from health worries. It holds from Aug to Oct 2029 and again from Apr 2030 to May 2032, with Aries in between. From May 2032 Saturn is in Gemini, the 7th from the Moon, where the texts point to strain in marriage and tiring travel.

Jupiter. Jupiter is in Leo, the 9th from the Moon, a classical favourable placement (success, gains, children), until Jan 2027. Its later moves are mixed. Cancer from Jan to Jun 2027 is the 8th from the Moon, but exalted there, so the texts say it does no harm. Virgo from Nov 2027 to Mar 2028 is the 10th from the Moon, which the texts link with pressure on position and property. Libra from Dec 2028 to Mar 2029 is the 11th, favourable. Scorpio, the 12th from the Moon, returns for Jan to May 2030, Sep 2030 to Feb 2031 and Jun to Oct 2031, bringing the texts' grief and anxiety, especially around travel. Sagittarius, the Moon's own sign and Jupiter's moolatrikona, from Feb to Jun 2031 and Oct 2031 to Mar 2032 softens those older warnings. From Mar to Aug 2032 Jupiter is in Capricorn, debilitated, so its good results are lost.

Dhaiya and Sade Sati. The current phase is the kantaka (4th-from-Moon) Dhaiya, from Mar 2025 to Feb 2028, not a Sade Sati. The next full Sade Sati begins in Dec 2043. Within the decade comes the ashtama (8th-from-Moon) Dhaiya, with Saturn in Cancer, from Jul 2034 to Aug 2036. The texts count it among Saturn's harder transits: loss of money and possessions, health worries, separation from children and friends, and a fall in standing. Saturn's lordship of the lagna softens it, and it begins within Rahu's own sub-period, which one author reads as a time of trials. Sade Sati and Dhaiya are popular traditions built on older house-by-house transit rules, and modern authors disagree about how severe they are. Svoboda finds them gloomier than most, Kurczak calls the fear-based framing folklore, and Raman treats a second Sade Sati as only moderately hard.

Past phases, as checks. The first Sade Sati peak ran from just before birth to Mar 1990, through the end of Ketu's period and the start of Venus's. Modern authors describe that peak as a time of pressure and of character being tested. The Venus period also held the kantaka Dhaiya of 1995 to 1998 and the ashtama Dhaiya of 2004 to 2007, and the 2014 to 2017 rising and peak phases fell in the Sun and Moon periods, with the 2017 to 2023 phases in the Moon period. Do the years around 2004 and 2017 match your own accounts?

Double transits. The double transits that matter most for the running periods are these. The 4th (home and property, a house Mars rules) is double-transited in Jun to Oct 2027, Mar to Jul 2028, Dec 2028 to Mar 2029, and Oct 2029 to Jan 2030. The 10th (career, a house Venus rules) is double-transited in Dec 2028 to Mar 2029 and Oct 2029 to Jan 2030. The 2nd (money) is double-transited in Aug to Oct 2029 and May to Sep 2030. The 5th and 11th are covered in the key stretch above. The 7th (partnership) is double-transited in Apr to May 2030, Sep 2030 to Feb 2031, Jun to Oct 2031, and Mar to May 2032.

Saturn over natal planets. Saturn passes over natal Venus and Rahu in the 3rd house, in Nov 2026 to Jun 2027 and Oct 2027 to Feb 2028, so siblings, courage and short journeys are under review in the Mars-Rahu and Mars-Jupiter stretches. It passes over natal Jupiter in the 4th house, in Jun to Oct 2027, Feb 2028 to Aug 2029 and Oct 2029 to Apr 2030, so home and property are under review through the Mars period.

Yogini periods. The Venus yogini (Siddha) runs to Jul 2032. Venus is exalted and not weak, so the texts' happy reading applies: success, comforts, honour, and celebrations in the family. The cautions about a weak, afflicted Venus do not apply. The next, Sankata (Rahu), runs Jul 2032 to Jul 2040, and the texts call it a crisis period of setbacks, poor health and weakness, separations, and legal or official trouble. Rahu shares Venus's house, which can give a raja yoga here, but the texts say it seldom lasts, and Mars and Ketu's aspects keep the harder side in view. This is the stretch that most asks for patience and health care.

Chara periods. Given as timing markers only: Mithuna runs until Feb 2028, Vrishabha until Feb 2039, and Mesha until Feb 2047.

In date order. Sub-periods are Vimshottari; a double transit is Jupiter and Saturn both acting on a house from the lagna; Saturn phases are counted from the Moon.

The key stretch of the next decade is Mars within Venus, Aug 2030 to Oct 2031, when the most supportive planet leads and several double transits fall on the 5th, 7th and 11th houses. The brightest other stretches are Mars within Jupiter (2027 to 2028) and Rahu within Jupiter (from Jun 2035), while the most testing are Mars within Saturn (2028 to 2029) and the ashtama Dhaiya (Jul 2034 to Aug 2036).

12 Strengths, challenges, guidance and optional remedies

Strengths to build on

A supportive Venus. Venus rules the 5th and 10th houses for this rising sign, is exalted in Pisces, and is strong in the navamsa, so creative work, recognition and close bonds have a dependable base. Its gifts arrive through steady effort rather than luck, so the best use of them is to take the first step yourself (see Career).

Jupiter as a steadying presence. Jupiter sits in the 4th house, in a friendly sign, and its benefic aspect falls on the Moon, Mars and Saturn in the 12th. That gives home, mentors and faith a source of calm that the crowded 12th house does not supply on its own (see Family).

Strength in the navamsa. Mars and Venus are moolatrikona there, the Moon is in its own sign, and Jupiter is vargottama. This supports quiet, private work that holds up under pressure, and it is a good foundation for disciplined inner practice (see Spirituality).

A learned, self-earned mind. Mercury as Atmakaraka and the Sunapha yoga point to intelligence and earnings through your own effort. The Raja and Dhana combinations, both involving Mars and Saturn, add a real capacity for responsibility and for building resources (see Yogas and doshas).

Challenges to manage

A crowded twelfth house. The Moon, Mars and Saturn gather there, and the lagna lord is among them, so results come with more effort and more need for rest and privacy (see Personality).

Money that needs protecting. The lords of your savings and of your income both sit in the house of expense, so steady saving matters more than bold moves (see Finance).

The Sun's tested position. An enemy sign and weakness in the navamsa put pressure on temper, pride and money decisions, so courage works best when paired with patience (see Personality).

A mind that can scatter. Mercury is retrograde and combust, and Ketu's aspect can add a sceptical edge, so attention is best kept in regular, focused blocks rather than in long bursts (see Mind).

Partnership needs patience. The 7th house lord, the Moon, sits in the 12th, and Mars's energy reaches the 7th house, so partnership asks for open communication and shared planning (see Relationships).

Practical guidance

Money. Keep a budget and a saving habit, talk through loans and big commitments with a trusted adviser, and treat speculation with caution. Jupiter and Saturn both touch the second house from May to September 2030, which is a good time to review budgets. The decisions remain yours.

Career and public work. Lean on the strengths of Venus: advisory, creative, teaching or partnership-based work, and projects where you can lead through clear communication. The Venus sub-period within the Mars period, from August 2030 to October 2031, is the most supportive stretch for this area, so it suits larger career steps.

Learning and negotiation. Mercury's periods favour study, trade and settling disputes. The Mercury sub-period within the Mars period, from March 2029 to March 2030, is well suited to focused study and to clear, patient negotiation.

Health and rest. The current Rahu sub-period within the Mars period, running to March 2027, asks for extra care with paperwork, travel and money, and for a steady routine of sleep and regular meals. This is traditional guidance, not medical advice, so a routine visit to a doctor is a sensible companion to it.

Partnership and home. Lead with honest, unhurried conversation, and plan shared money together rather than separately. Quiet evenings and time away from crowds help you recharge, which matters for a chart where the inner life runs deep.

Traditional remedies (optional)

Table 20. Optional traditional remedies

Planet	Why it is suggested	Traditional day	Practice	Status
Sun	in an enemy's sign, in the 2nd	Sunday	Worship the Sun, chant its mantra, and offer food or simple gifts to others; humility with superiors helps.	Optional
Moon	in a neutral sign, in the 12th	Monday	Worship the Moon, chant its mantra, and feed others on Mondays; a quiet evening routine supports the mind.	Optional
Mars	in a friend's sign, in the 12th	Tuesday	Worship Mars with its mantra on Tuesdays, give to the needy, and channel energy into disciplined physical work.	Optional
Mercury	in a neutral sign, in the 1st, close to the Sun	Wednesday	Worship Mercury with its mantra on Wednesdays, and feed or teach others; careful, truthful speech is the practice.	Optional
Saturn	in a neutral sign, in the 12th	Saturday	Worship Saturn with its mantra on Saturdays, serve elders and the poor, and keep steady, patient daily routines.	Optional

All remedies are optional traditional practices. No gemstone is needed.

These traditional practices are optional, devotional or lifestyle in nature, and none of them is a fix for a planet. Start with the free practices, since the sources differ on the details, and no gemstone is needed.

Taken together, this is a chart of steady, private strength: a practical rising sign, a helpful Venus and Jupiter, and a crowded 12th house that asks for patience and protected rest. Effort and good timing matter more here than speed. Use the quieter stretches to prepare, and the stronger ones will be easier to make the most of.
